Classification of values

Intrinsic or Instrumental:

1. An intrinsic value is one that is important and desirable simply for its own sake.
2. It is worthy of being sought for itself alone. Honesty, co-operation, creativity, beauty, discipline, respect etc. are some of the intrinsic values in management.
3. On the other hand, instrumental values are of reaching intrinsic or end values, sometimes goal values. Therefore, they form the basic values leading to another.
4. Planning, skills, order and efficiency and technological satisfaction are examples of instrumental values.
